Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson (left) expressed his concern at the CBC Nazi film showing. He will make a statement to the nation about it. Opposition leader Diefenbaker (right) was angry and shocked. He told The Canadian Jewish News that he would demand that CBC president be invited before a parliament committee for an explanation.

CBC'S BLACK SUNDAY ROCKS NATION

CANADA SHOCKED

REPORTERS OR YOKELS?

BY OSCAR BERSON
(CJN Staff Reporter)

This past Sunday — October 25th, when Canada's government sponsored TV network, CBC, decided to show us Lincoln Rockwell — will be remembered by millions of Canadians as Black Sunday in our contemporary history. This is a true objective, journalistic report of the atmosphere which prevailed in the country following the Rockwell show. It is based on talks with Canadians of all faiths, Canadians who are concerned with the future of democracy.

This reporter began to explore the feelings of men and women of all walks of life in Montreal, where I attended the 37th Zionist Convention at the Queen Elizabeth Hotel. The leaders at this convention were confused. For, until late in the afternoon, they were sure that protests would prevent the showing of this political, pornographic film. However, as night descended, a protest resolution finally was passed. A lot of good it did!

I watched Rockwell with a group of friends, most of them non-Jews. When the show was over, one of them remarked:

"Rockwell just said: 'In Canada he has only one hundred known adherents'. The CBC has given him new followers. People in charge of such programs, who don't know that the dissemination of hatred is more powerful than propaganda for brotherhood, have no business running them — especially with the taxpayers' money".

What shocked most viewers was the fact that the interviewing was left to amateurs, so-called freelance reporters who have no background in contemporary history and are unable to confront Rockwell. The most flagrant example of the ignorance of these interviewers was when Rockwell claimed that Hitler could not have destroyed six million Jews as there were only 600,000 in Germany.

Is it possible that CBC reporters are not capable of telling Rockwell that the extermination of Jews began long after many of the German Jews had left Germany — before World War II — and that those exterminated, millions — among them a million-and-a-half children —, were transported to Auschwitz, Maidanik and other camps of death from all over Europe? There were millions from Poland, Russia, France, Belgium, Holland, Austria, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Latvia, Lithuania, and even from as far off as Greece. And where is the question about the tens of millions of Christians including Germans, killed because of Hitler and the Nazis? Where did these CBC interviewers study contemporary history?

The CBC admits that about a thousand persons phoned its offices in protest, but those who run the studios are wiser than the people. It is they who decide that hatred, spread through the most popular medium of communication — television —, seen by young and old, women and children, intelligent people and those less so, is not harmful.

The country at large is aroused by such irresponsibility. True most Canadians are not susceptible to such vile, vicious and stupid attacks against different groups. But these same intelligent Canadians are incensed by such trash — dangerous trash — shown.

NEW ZIONIST PRESIDENT — Lawrence Freiman of Ottawa was elected president of the Zionist Organization of Canada at the 37th annual convention held this week in Montreal. (A full analysis of this important rally will be published in The Canadian Jewish News next week.)

P.M., Dief Furious

CBC, by its Sunday night program — This Hour Has Seven Days — gave Canada a red face. It was reflected in the expression of Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson when he stood on Monday before a Parliament united in anger and dismay as never before.

The Canadian Jewish News was authorized to state, by a source close to the Prime Minister, that the Rt. Hon. Lester B. Pearson is deeply shocked and concerned by the CBC Nazi presentation, and there definitely will be a serious investigation of the matter.

PRICE: $270,000

Mr. Pearson is preparing a candid statement to be delivered in the House of Commons. What already is known at this moment is that the Prime Minister is determined to probe the CBC affair in order to determine how the ugly face of Lincoln Rockwell appeared on television in Canada. The nation is disgusted by the Nazi spectacle which cost the taxpayers $270,000.

SHOCKING, SHOCKING!

In the meantime, the Rt. Hon. John G. Diefenbaker, former Prime Minister, posed the question in Parliament. Following his courageous declaration in Commons, Mr. Diefenbaker, in a telephone interview with The Canadian Jewish News, his voice ostensibly moved by profound pain and indignation, several times interrupted his statement, murmuring: "Shocking, Shocking."

SCANDALOUS PROGRAM

Said Mr. Diefenbaker, for the record:

"This CBC presentation was a scandalous program, a program that showed a shocking disregard for the feeling of the Canadian people as a whole and a contemptuous and sordid attitude towards our Jewish fellow citizens.

"I asked the Minister to invite immediately CBC president Alphonse Ouimet and other executive officers to explain to a Committee of Parliament why Nazism should be glorified in this way. Also such appearance before a Committee of Parliament would demonstrate that Parliament does not give its approval for this sort of thing.

"It is shocking."

"Mr. Diefenbaker, in his statement to Parliament, also asked Minister Maurice Lamountagne, the Secretary of State, whether he had received a protest from the Zionist Convention and from the Royal Canadian Legion, prior to the showing of the film.

Z.O.C. PROTESTED C.J.C. WAITED

(The Zionist Organization sharply protested prior to the showing of the film. On the other hand, the Canadian Jewish Congress administrative committee, meeting in Toronto on Friday, decided to adopt a wait-and-see policy. Only belatedly, on Monday, when the entire nation and the world were angered, did Mr. Sydney M. Harris, national chairman of the Community Relations Committee of Congress and B'nai B'rith, protest the CBC showing.)

In the House of Commons, Mr. Marvin Gelber, Toronto MP, also asked a question, whether the preamble by narrator John Drainie was sufficient to warrant the presentation of this film.

ANTI-HATE BILL REVIVED BY PARLIAMENT

OTTAWA, (JCN) — By unanimous decision, the House of Commons last Friday resolved to empower the External Affairs Committee to conduct a complete investigation as how to curb the dissemination of hate literature in Canada.

Two private bills that had been introduced by MPs will be the subject matter of this inquiry. The first private bill was introduced several months ago by Milton L. Klein of Montreal and co-sponsored by James Walker of Toronto, the Liberal whip. The other bill was introduced by David Orlikov of Winnipeg.

The Klein-Walker Bill, as it is known, had been outtalked previously in the House. The new decision is a vindication of the efforts of Messrs. Klein and Walker.

Interviewed by The Canadian Jewish News immediately after the important decision by the House, Mr. Klein expressed his satisfaction at this decision. He hopes the External Affairs Committee will act promptly so that such a law become effective in the nearest future.

However, Mr. E. Gelber, Toronto MP, expressed his disappointment. Speaking to this newspaper, Mr. Gelber stated that he would have preferred a resolution amending the present criminal law in order to deal immediately with those guilty of racial propaganda.

This step, taken by the Commons, was hailed by the Association of Former Nazi Concentration Camp Inmates which supported the Klein-Walker Bill. This was told us by Lou Zablow, its president. Other ethnic groups also welcomed this study.

This important decision by the Commons came on the heels of Thursday's parliamentary debate when the Rt. Hon. John G. Diefenbaker again raised the issue.

The former Prime Minister mentioned The Canadian Jewish News in his interpolation to the Minister of Justice. According to Hansard, Mr. Diefenbaker said:

"The Canadian Jewish News stated in a recent issue it had been advised that legislation had been prepared and was ready for presentation to the House. Months have gone by while this matter has been studied. Would the Minister take the House into his confidence now?"

To which the Minister of Justice, the Hon. Guy Favreau, replied that he was pleased to report that the Prime Minister had received a joint delegation of Congress and the Zionist Movement, and that this matter had been discussed. Very shortly, the Minister of Justice assured the Opposition Leader, recommendations will be ready.

However, as this reporter learned, neither the Prime Minister, the Rt. Hon. Lester B. Pearson, nor the Opposition Leader was satisfied with this reply. Mr. Pearson instructed some immediate action.

The next day Mr. Orlikow was prepared to address Parliament on this issue, as was Mr. Gelber and others. Then the motion was made to launch the inquiry which, it is hoped, will accelerate the taking of steps.

By M. J. Nurenberger

OUR ITALIAN NEIGHBOURS

I wish someone interested in promoting a fuller understanding among North Americans of different racial and ethnic background would publish an English version of The Jews in France Under the Italian Occupation, which appeared in Paris immediately after the liberation.

An eminent French statesman, a former minister, Justin Godard, has written a remarkable preface to this important work which tells the story of how Italians in southern France, both simple people and statesmen alike, managed to sabotage the Gestapo-hunt for Jews.

Officially, because of Mussolini's surrender to Hitler in the last years of World War II, they all were Fascists. But the French Jews who ran from other sections of the country to the Riviera, which was under Italian administration, tell a moving story of humaneness in the darkest period of European history. Godard says, "This attitude has made the territories occupied by the Italian army — in France, in Yugoslavia and in Greece — security zones for Jews."

The Hitlerite dogs were sniffing around, looking for Jews. But somehow they couldn't get hold of them.

I remember an anecdote I read.

A small Italian official was delegated by Rome to take charge of Jews — under German pressure. His name was Lospinoso. He bore the imposing title of Commissar for Jewish Affairs in Nice.

The Germans, however, could not understand why Lospinoso was not able to discover the Jews' hiding places. An emissary of Himmler came to Nice to inquire about this. Lospinoso, one of those clever Italians who are born showmen and can pose as simpletons, told the German:

"Herr Minister, tell me, who is a Jew? What is a Jew? Are you Jewish?"

The German was so shocked by the "ignorance" of the little Italian and by the offense — the impertinent insinuation that an Aryan can be a Jew! — that he left Lospinoso's office in a huff.

This sabotage of the German extermination policy by Italian officials occupies volumes of documents which, when read at the Nuremberg Trials, caused some of the most hilarious incidents among those there who heard these unusual stories of how Italians took Germans for a ride.

The fact is, about 20,000 Jews were saved in southern France by a well organized Italian underground which, towards the end of the war, resulted in the intervention by the German foreign minister, Von Ribbentrop, with Ciano. But even this protest did not help. The Italians continued, during the entire war, their dedicated assistance to Jews who were hiding from the Nazis.

In fact, one should alway remember that the Italians, in contrast to the Germans, refused to wait for others to liberate them from Fascism. They did so themselves, at the first opportunity. For they are Italians — a freedom loving people.

I'm relating this in connection with the Centennial of Italian immigration into Canada, now being observed from the Pacific to the Atlantic.

We Jews should try to learn more about this role of the Italians during World War II. In the chronicles of the last war, in the macabre history of extermination, this part played by Italians is an episode which should contribute towards a better understanding and a more intimate rapport among two communities who know each other so little yet have so much in common.

I salute our Italian neighbors.

Protests In Canada Mounting

The most impressive protests in Toronto were held by the Association of Hungarian Jews and by an emergency conference at which thirty Jewish organizations representing 20,000 citizens called the Labor Zionist Movement. Both the picketing by the Hungarians and the conference at the Labor Zionist Center took place on Sunday.

The Labor Zionist conference, in which more than a hundred delegates participated, was chaired by Jacob Egit.

The delegates of the organizations protested not only against the CBC but they also expressed their deep regret at the decision of the administrative committee of the Canadian Jewish Congress for not interfering.

The Canadian Jewish News learned that last Friday the administrative committee of the Canadian Jewish Congress decided not to make any move till the show was presented. Apparently freedom of speach was the determining factor in this decision, as Mr. S. J. Midanik, Q. C., explained this position at the emergency meeting at the Labor Zionist Center. However, this explanation did not impress the rally.

The Labor Zionist conference, speaking for 20,000 affiliated members, adopted the following resolution in which it protested vehemently the CBC action by the self-styled, American Nazi leader a Canadian TV outlet. It also deplored this (CBC) move as a deliberate affront to democracy and as a demonstration of a basic insensitivity to what Nazism represents today, and to the horrors it has caused in the past.

The following organizations participated in this meeting: Farband, Labor Zionist Order; United Organizations for Histadrut; Workmen's Circle; Borochov Movement; Lodzer Center; Bergen-Belsen Association; New Fraternal Jewish Organization; Jewish Labor Committee; Zaglember Society; Jewish Lithuanian Farband; Mezricher Society; Ostrovtzer Sick Benefit Society; Piotrokov Tomashov Society; Pultusker Landsmanshaft; Stopnitzer Young Men's Association; Shedlitz Society; Sunnyside Lodge, 100F; Warshaver-Lodzer Society; YMHA Sick Benefit Society, Ladies Auxiliary; Habonim; Dror; Committee for Yiddish; Pride of Israel Sick Benefit Society; Shedlower Young Men; Share Tzedec Congregation; Hebrew Liberal Club; Chenstochover Hilfs Farein; Organization for Polish Jews; Masada Club, Lithuanian Ladies.

The speakers at the emergency meeting included: N. Neslin; J. Slonim; H. Ferens; S. Bierstone; H. Kirshenbaum; L. Wise; M. Bernstein; C. Bernikier; S. Lichter; A. Katz; N. Witman; R. Bernstein; A. Malkin; Mr. Lenkinsky; Mr. Promansky.

The Jewish students' organization, Hillel, called The Canadian Jewish News to express its dismay. It also reported that students of all faiths plan to protest this demonstration of vandalism on TV.

Dr. E. Verny, president of Toronto's Association of Hungarian Jews,, which is responsible for the impressive picketing, told this newspaper:

"As president of the Hungarian Jewish Association of Toronto, I wish to lodge the strongest protest not only against the showing of the film but also against the manner in which it was presented. We demand an investigation of the persons responsible for this production".

Dr. Verny also stated:

In exposing the public to this film, the producers of "This Hour Has Seven Days" may have had good intentions. But the result is a disservice to our democratic society.

The so-called interview with Rockwell was conducted in the clumsiest manner possible.... the setting itself was an insult.... normally interviewer and interviewee are seated visually on the same level. This time the persons in charge of the production placed Rockwell literally on a pedestal. He sat under the swastika flag, declared illegal by the United Nations as a symbol of a criminal organization.

The program, This Hour Has Seven Days, usually deals with events of the preceding week. What did occur during that week that prompted the CBC to present Rockwell's Nazis?

MAIN SPEAKER AT NEGEV DINNER — Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg, spiritual leader of Toronto's Beth Tzedec synagogue, has accepted the invitation of dinner chairman John R. Devor and Nat Hurwich, JNF leader to deliver the main address at the 1964 - Negev Dinner which will take place on December 2nd at the Royal York Hotel.

This year's Negev Dinner promises to become one of the outstanding events of the season.

"Why should I build my home this winter?"

Here's one good reason!

$500.00 CASH

You Get a $500 Cash Incentive
To help keep Canada's building trades busy and productive during the winter season, the Federal Government is again offering to pay a $500 cash incentive to those who build or buy a winter-built home for their own occupancy.

What is a Winter-Built Home?
A winter built home under this program is one that has not proceeded beyond the first floor joist stage by November 15th and is substantially completed by March 31st, 1965.

How Do You Proceed?
It's easy. Pick up an Application for Certification form at your National Employment office or Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation office, fill it out and mail to your nearest CMHC office. If you wish, your builder can do this for you. Complete information on the program is included on the application form.

Act Now
See your builder and arrange to have your home winter-built. Help yourself to that $500 cash incentive and help Canadian industry stay busy throughout the winter.
Last Winter more than 28,000 homes were built under this program.

LABOUR ZIONIST MOVEMENT LEADERS GREET MINISTER YOSEF ALMOGI

His Excellency Josef Almogi, Minister of Development and Housing of the State of Israel, spent a full and busy day in Toronto on October 19th, as the wind-up of his two-week North American tour on behalf of the State of Israel Bond effort on this continent. While in Toronto, Mr. Almogi conferred with government, labour, housing, and Labour Zionist leaders, in a series of city tours, a luncheon, a dinner meeting and a Mass Rally of the Labour Zionist membership.

A brilliant orator in both Yiddish and English, Mr. Almogi left a profound impression upon the many hundreds of people who heard him during the course of his visit.

Particularly impressive was his message that, in regard to the State of Israel, it is, as he put it, "More important to see the greatness of the need rather than the greatness of the achievements." With respect to the recent Summit Conference of Arab leaders, Mr. Almogi stated that" the new unity among Israel's enemies, must be counteracted by strengthening Israel's own Summit conference with her allies—the Jews of the entire free world. Peace in Israel is not in the hands of Nasser. This is the first time in our history, after 2,000 years, that our fate, our destiny, our lives, depend more on our own Jews than on any others.".

Referring to Israel Bonds specifically, Mr. Almogi declared, "Bonds are the best and finest coin in the world. It is a coin which has two faces. On the one side is one's duty as a Jew, one's honour as a man, and one's pleasure as a human being. On the other side, it is sound business. Secure—and linked to the dollar. We pay a moderate rate — 4 percent. We cannot afford to pay high rates, but we can afford to secure them. That is why non-Jewish bankers, who are very good businessmen, without emotions, are purchasing State of Israel Bonds in growing numbers".

SECRET WAR BETWEEN ISRAEL, EGYPT INTELLIGENCE

LONDON (JCNS) — Reports of a "secret war" between Israeli and Egyptian intelligence forces over the activities of German scientists in Egypt have been given prominence in the Cairo press last week.

Mohamad Hassanein Heikal, the chief editor of the newspaper "Al Ahram", has spoken of "frequent incidents of kidnapping, of murder by shooting and poisoning, not to mention bribery, blackmail and enticement with ex and beauty."

Heikal asserts that, on one occasion, "Israeli intelligence did not scruple to place a time-bomb aboard one of the passenger aircraft of a European airline company, merely because it thought one of these German passengers was going to board it on a flight between Germany and Switzerland. The bomb exploded and all the passengers died. Later, German intelligence discovered that the intended German scientist had stayed behind at the last moment."

In another report, Heikal's newspaper claimed that Israeli intelligence had lately changed its tactics and had been mailing bobby-trap letters to German scientists in Egypt from Cairo instead of foreign cities.

Heikal, who claimed that co-operation between Egyptian and German scientists had succeded "beyond all that Israel expected", said that the Arab-Israeli conflict was reaching a new and dangerous peak where an explosion could take place.

This, he declared, was the result of many factors making for Israeli frustration, among them the issue of the scientists, the unfavourable resolution adopted by the conference of non-aligned nations in Cairo, the establishment of a unified Arab command, the formation of the Palestine Liberation Organization and the creation of a Palestine Army.

Toronto Histadrut Conference

300 EXPECTED AT NOVEMBER 15 RALLY AS ORGANIZATIONS MOBILIZE FOR DRIVE

The twenty-first Annual Conference of Toronto's Israel Histadrut Campaign and the United Organizations will open on Sunday, November 15th, 9 a.m., at the Labor Zionist Centre, 14 View mount Ave. With decades of activity completed, this conference marks the beginning of a new era of challenges and accomplishments.

Seventeen years have passed since the birth of Israel. Great historical tasks have been discharged. Unparalleled achievements of everlasting importance have been scored; but the agony of birth and growth is not yet over.

Three kinds of challenges face Israel: threats of Arab aggression; internal tensions resulting from growth, immigrant absorption, and rapid acculteration, and a third, which faces all Jewry today — that of preserving the unity of the Jewish people through creative relationship between Israel and Jewish communities everywhere.

Histadrut is in the front line of Israel's defense against the Arab's cold and hot war. The absorption of Olim, the preservation of established positions and the founding of new villages, Moshovim and cities impose on Histadrut more serious responsibilities than ever before.

The Campaign slogan, FACING TOMORROW FROM A NEW STATE TO A NEW SOCIETY summarizes the essence of the tasks confronting our conference. The State of Israel is the framework for a new society based on the supreme social ideals of our people as expressed by the great visionaries of Histadrut, past and present. To preserve and expand that society, we must raise funds for its most characteristic institutions, its cooperatives, social welfare agencies, medical clinics, cultural centers, trade and vocational schools, senior citizens' homes, nurseries, etc. The survival of Histadrut's precepts through the expansion of these institutions is a guarantee of Israel's uniqueness in history.

The Jewish grassroot in Canada is called upon to commit itself more firmly and generously than ever before to meet the needs of pioneering Israel. These problems and the program of Histdrut geared to meet them will be analyzed by ranking Histadrut leaders who will be in Toronto especially for this conference.

The Histadrut Campaign has invited all fraternal organizations, landsmanshaften, trade unions and affiliated organizations to attend this important conference.

It is expected that more than 300 delegates will attend this conference to demonstrate their solidarity to the Histadrut and help formulate plans for a successful campaign in 1965.

GUEST SPEAKER — Mr. Arnold Edinborough, editor and publisher of Saturday Night Magazine, who will be guest speaker at the opening dinner meeting of Beth Tzedec Men's Club on Wednesday, November 4th, in the Beth Tzedec Synagogue. His topic of discussion will be: Violence — The Latest Threat in Canada.

German Scientists In Egypt At Home

BONN (JCNS) — The Egyptian Ambassador to Bonn, Mr. Gamal El Mansour, told the West German news agency here that the Federal Government had no right to tell any citizen of a free democratic State where he should work and where he should not.

"It would be neither humane nor democratic," the Ambassador said, if Bonn put pressure on its citizens in Cairo to return to Germany. The scientists were free to return if they so wished, but he did not think that they would do so, because they seemed to feel quite at home in Egypt.

He then pointed out that apart from Germans, many scientists from other countries, including Switzerland, Austria, Italy, the United States and the Soviet Union, were also working in Egypt.

MEMO FROM NEW YORK

HOOVER & THE JEWS

NEW YORK (JCNS) — Mr. Herbert Hoover, the 31st President of the United States, who died last week, aged 90, was very helpful to persecuted Jewish communities, particularly those of Poland.

While he was director of relief for the Allied Powers after the First World War, a report came to his office (in 1919) of the massacre in Pinsk of 33 Jews who had gathered in a synagogue to discuss the division of Passover food received from the American Joint Distribution Committee.

His personal assistant, Mr. Lewis Strauss (who was to become an admiral and later Acting Secretary of State), wrote afterwards: "As he read it his face seemed to grow older." He acted decisively, telling the Polish Prime Minister, Mr. Ignace Pederewski, that relief supplies from America could not be expected to continue unless the pogroms were stopped at once and those responsible brought to justice. His firm action led to an investigation of the anti-Jewish excesses.

Speaking that year to a convention of the Polish National Committee in the United States, Mr. Hoover unequivocally blamed the Poles for the racial conflicts in their country and reminded them that the Jews had been prohibited from entering agriculture an dindustry and had been forced to become "middlemen".

He also acted on behalf of Polish Jewry during his Presidency (1929 to 1933). Within six weeks of the end of his term he was informed of further persecution of Polish Jews and as asked to express his views on this to the Polish Ambassador, who was scheduled to present his credentials. He did so in very strong terms.

Mr. Hoover denounced the Nazi persecution of the Jews after a trip to Europe in 1938. It was reported at the time that he had angered Hitler by expressing his forthright opinions on fascism.

As President, Mr. Hoover courageously appointed Mr. Benjamin Cardozo to the U.S.A. Supreme Court against the advice of people who recalled the antisemitic uproar over the appointment of Mr. Louis Brandies to that bench, and who felt that the appointment of a second Jew to America's highest tribunal would result in an epidemic of Jew-baiting in the country. Mr. Hoover, however, was convinced that Cardozo was ideally qualified for the position by judicial temperament, experience and knowledge of the law, and he did not hesitate in his decision. Mr. Cardozo went on to become one of the great judges in American legal annals.

GREAT EDUCATOR

TORONTO HONOURS DR. DIAMOND

This coming Sunday, Toronto will observe the fifteenth anniversary of the establishment of the Bureau of Jewish Education. Simultaneously the community will honor one of its truly dedicated leaders, a man known and respected on the North American continent as an educator and fighter for Jewish education, Dr. Joseph Diamond.

Even in our age of cynicism, in our affluent society where the man of the book, the man of learning, the scholar is relegated to second level, Dr. Diamond has succeeded in imposing himself upon the community as the uncontested head of our Jewish educational system. The executive director of our Bureau of Education has won this distinction and respect for his unquestioned love of Torah — in the broadest and deepest sense of the term. He knows one loyalty only — that of serving the growing generation, the future of our people. He does not discriminate between right and left, a yeshiva or afternoon school. Wherever the Hebrew language echoes, wherever Jewish culture is taught — Dr. Diamond dedicates himself to the development of the institution.

On this anniversary, when the entire continent considers Toronto's Jewish school system exemplary, the expression of our gratitude to Dr. Diamond and his associates is well deserved.

man in the news

MORRIS B. KAUFMAN

Morris B. Kaufman, who will be honored on December 2nd by Toronto's Jewish community at what promises to be the most outstanding Negev dinner, is a modest, self-effacing public servant in the best sense of the word. He is a self-made man who impresses one by the logic and intelligence which come from experience and the pursuit of what is right in life.

A relatively young man, fifty-three-year-old, Morris plays an important role both in the business world and in the community. Honors are thrust upon him. And, as he told this interviewer, "I never would have accepted to be the honoree of the Negev Dinner had I not been assured by friends and colleagues that this affair will help Israel".

A life-long Zionist, Mr. Kaufman is dedicated to Israel, to his synagogue (Beth Tzedec), to Jewish education and to the welfare of all inhabitants of Toronto, regardless of race or creed. His philanthropies reach outside the Jewish community.

Morris B. Kaufman's father died at an early age. So, at fourteen, he was brought to Canada from a small town in eastern Galicia (Poland) by an aunt in Sarnia, Mrs. Leah Zierler. She had lost a son and raised her nephew as her own.

Morris, immediately upon his arrival here, started out to prove that the confidence placed in him would be well deserved. At once he began to work hard, peddling junk by horse and wagon and attending night school. He began his philanthropic career and community interests almost right after he had earned his first dollars. He became active in the Sarnia synagogue, the Zionist youth groups and was appointed secretary of the B'nai B'rith when he was less than twenty years old. And he brought to Canada the rest of his family.

Mr. Kaufman's business career has been phenomenal. He is one of the leading personalities in the metal industry as well as in other economic enterprises.

In 1938 he married Rose Bearg. They have three children, Linda, Dinah and Ira. Both daughters are married. Their sons-in-law, Schuyler Segal and Michael Segal, assist them in their community endeavors.

Because of Mr. Kaufman's popularity and his dedication to the Jewish National Fund, one of the main instruments in the upbuilding of Israel, it is predicted that the Negev Dinner will attract the elite of our community.

A CHRISTIAN'S IMPRESSION

By PAUL MORTON

IN THE TAVERN THEY SAID ROCKWELL IS RIGHT...

I have earned some useful Canadian Broadcasting Corportation dollars in my day. And I hope to earn more money in the future from the same source. There is much about the CBC I admire and respect. However, when the Corporation wallows in the lowest gutters of nasty, depraved, irresponsible journalism — I am mad.

The sniggering presentation of that Nazi would-be killer, George Lincoln Rockwell, on Toronto's Channel 6 Sunday night (and described by forlorn commentator John Drainie as "plausible" — meaning "specious, superficially pleasing", in my dictionary has thrown me off my normal writing stride. I cannot, will not, rest until I rid myself of this tight feeling of contempt.

I have a demanding assignment from the Centennial Commission at Ottawa to write a working paper on, The Improvement and Beautification of Canada for Centennial Year — 1967. But who can write about the improvement and beautification of one's country when such inflammatory filth as the nauseating Rockwell interview is televised in one's living room by a Corporation supported and maintained by out nation's tax dollars?

I was one of three brothers who saw the Rockwell program Sunday night. Until 1944 there were four of us. David, the youngest, was shot down and killed while attacking a Nazi submarine from the air in a Sunderland bomber. The two who were with me had served respectively in the navy and army of this country. I was a war correspondent who had parachuted behind enemy lines to observe the Nazis in action against the guerrilla partisans of Italy.

As Rockwell spewed forth his hatred against Jews, Negroes I felt the hair on the back of my neck rise in anger. I felt an urge to kill coming on — a horrible feeling after one has passed 50. Indeed, at any age it is horrible to feel this way. It is horrible because it is subhuman, sickening, personally degrading.

If this is what the journalists hoped for in the way of reaction, they got just what they were looking for: HATE. And much of the hate felt by the three of us was directed against the writers, directors, producers, commentators and executives, — all the sensation-hungry people of the CBC responsible for this appalling show.

George Lincoln Rockwell is a criminal. Any society, or segment thereof, that does not understand this is sick, stupid or — worse. He is, by definition, a criminal in Great Britain, the Soviet Union, or in the depths of Darkest Africa. A more merciful world may repeal one day the law of capital punishment. But no people, anywhere on earth will call for the repeal of laws calling for the death of men like George Rockwell. Those of us concerned with the survival of mankind want them dead.

Each time Rockwell was addressed as "Commander", I noticed my navy brother wince. Each time Rockwell spoke of "executing traitor Jews", I saw my army brother's hands clench and unclench in impotent anger. I could not turn off the set. As if mesmerized by a huge crawling rat — the species I find most repugnant among living things — I was drawn to the evil, smirking face of Rockwell until hatred of all he stood for welled up in me, and I felt sick. Without exaggerating I went to the bathroom and vomited.

Were I a CBC executive, employee or T.V. personality, and had had any part in the making of this depraved production, I should want to go to whatever God, faith, or vague area of decency I inhabited, and pray for the small part of personal honor left to me. I should feel permanently unclean.

The editor of The Canadian Jewish News would, I believe, prefer that I provide intellectual reasons for my loathing and contempt for this mean show. I cannot. What Toronto Star writer Ron Haggert calls the CBC's "dirty picture postcard aspect of journalism" cannot, may not, be dignified by a mental appraisal. Of a dirty picture it is sometimes possible to say, tolerantly, "I suppose it may satisfy someone's lust". But the CBC here has been asking us to consider a man's lust to kill, to degrade, to destroy, to humiliate, to drive out from the rest of mankind. The CBC has asked us to observe a man succeeding in carrying out these evils; the evil thing all the gods of men have tried to cast into the outer darkness: the devils.

I have, in my work as a reporter, met a large number of anti-Semites, Negro haters, Nazi and Fascist torturers. I am too old, too tired perhaps, to enter into debate or engage in dialogue with them.

During World War II, thousands of your compatriots killed men like Rockwell without an ounce of compunction or regret. —

Even now, in a strained effort to be fair, one tries to visualize what must have been in some minds when it was decided to show the nature of a monster on television. Let no one tell us it might do some people good to "look upon the face of evil." We see and hear this kind of evil all around us. We keep it out of our homes and out of our lives as best we can. When it goes too far, we crush it.

This newspaper asked me whether I would interview some of Canada's more distinguished citizens and invite their comments on the CBC hate-show. I did not do this. Instead, I went to a typical Toronto pub and picked up a few impressions from The People. I didn't stay long. My stomach can only stand a certain number of remarks like these:

● I didn't agree with much he said. Except about Negroes. They'd be better off on reservations like the Indians. Imagine one making a pass at your wife. I'd kill the black b....!

● He had a good point about executing people.... People like the Rosenbergs. They were Jews and guilty as hell. A fellow once told me 85 percent of wartime offences against our government — spying, hoarding food, things like that — were Jewish offences. Every good government executes its traitors.

But why go on? It is enought to report that these were a few of the comments that stimulated The People by the CBC's George Lincoln Rockwell interview Sunday, October 23, in the Year of Our Lord, 1964. God help us.

KEEP SMILING

LOGICAL

Teacher (in Sunday school): Tell me something about Joseph. What sort of man was he?

Stevie: Joseph had a fine character. He was perfectly straight.

Teacher: How do you know Joseph was perfectly straight,

Stevie: Because Pharaoh appointed him to be a ruler.

The Sunday School teacher at the Temple was reviewing the Bible story of the last week.

Said the teacher, "I hope you have not forgotten what I told you about Samson. Let me test your memory. What did Samson use for scoring his great victory over the Philistines?"

No one answered. "So you have forgotten. Let's see if I can remind you. What's this?" he asked, pointing to his jaw.

"I know," one of the pupils burst forth. "The jawbone of an ass."

SETTING THINGS STRAIGHT

Levin (to the rabbi): Would you, as a teacher of morality, say that it is right to profit from the misfortune of your neighbor?

Rabbi: Of course not! Why do you ask?

Levin: I thought you might care to return the ten dollars I gave you for officiating at my wedding.

RESPONSE

The rabbi's words seemed to be truly successful this time. He spoke on the ultra-modern subject: The Gospel of Relaxation. The sermon attracted a large attendance.

Afterwards one of the elderly ladies present said to the rabbi:

"Doctor, I want to congratulate you on your fine sermon. You expressed my thoughts. I always did believe in laxatives."

THEATRE ● MUSIC ● FILM

By D. COHN

● Ely Rubinstein, Israeli composer, says that when he first came to Israel he spent considerable time studying the taste of the Israeli public and the character of Israeli music; they both are mixed, and that's why an Israeli composer's task is more difficult than most.

In Bucharest he was one of the best known composers on radio and television. He wrote music for ballet and films; some of his artistic creations won prizes at international art meetings. He took an interest in Jewish and Israeli folklore before coming to Israel.

He is composing now a little book of children's songs, text of which is by Moshe Sahar. It has two aims: to be used as an educational text in schools and to amuse the children.

He is sorry that Israel lacks its own dance music and must resort to foreign music. But he hopes to change that soon.

● John Braham (ne Abrahams), the most celebrated English tenor of his day (1774-1856), was born in London. An orphan at an early age, he sold pencils in the streets until a relative, Myer Lyon, better known as Leoni, sweet singer of the Duke's Place choir, adopted him. He became a chorister in the same synagogue and was brought to the notice of the Goldsmid brothers, bankers and communal leaders, who helped further his career as a singer.

He made his first stage appearance at ten and sang at Covent Garden at 13. In 1797 he toured France and Italy as a concert singer, studying music the while. On his return he became the leading operatic exponent of the English romantic school.

Braham also composed songs, the most popular being, The Death of Nelson. For nearly forty year (1796-1831) he retained his place in opera and concert hall as the foremost and favorite British tenor. His large fortune he invested in building the St. James' Theater, where he lost all his money. So, at the age of sixty he had to go on tour. In 1851 he went to America. But by that time his voice had lost its unique quality; he was forced to retire. He died three years later.

Braham was short, dark and fat, with bright, intelligent eyes. The saying was that he sang like an angel and spoke like a Jew.

● Eli Wallach says he often gets Italian parts. In fact, he was brought up with Italians; he was born in an Italian neighborhood in Brooklyn.

Wallach's parents came from Galicia at the turn of the century and settled in Brooklyn where his father opened a stationery shop. He originally intended to be a teacher. But he failed to pass his teacher's diploma at the University of Texas. He explains, "That was during the depression. There were not many jobs going then and the pass level was high. I think I would have made it at any other time".

He turned to the theater, but soon war broke out and he served four years as an officer in the Army Medical Corps.

He made his name after the war and became well known through his performance as Sakini in, Tea House of the August Moon.

Wallach claims he owes his success to hard work and hardly any night life. He says, "If you're playing six nights a week, with matinees twice a week, you're happy to fall into bed."

● France has two big night clubs with "snob" appeal that is difficult for anyone to crash, even "names". It is run by a Polish Jewess, Regine Zylberberg. Her trademark is impertinence and bold repartee, as well as rudeness. She refuses to admit anyone whose face she does not like. Members of her clique include the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, Francois Sagan, Christian Dior, Marc Bohan, painter Bernard Buffet and singer Juliet Greco.

When the "Reginskaia", situated in the smartest and oldest established summer resort in the north of France, was inaugurated, Regine turned away the "international set" by the dozens. To gain admittance has become the height of snobbish prestige. Money and an aristocratic title mean nothing. Moreover, dinner at the "Reniskaia" costs a minimum of 150 francs ($30). But the club is always filled. Friends and friends of friends are welcome, strangers always are scrutinized. Regine explains, "If we like a person's face, we let them in".

Decor is all black. Regine never goes to bed before eight in the morning. "I hate daylight", and she selected black-painted walls, draperies and carpeting for her new club. "As a child, I was enthralled by my father's bakery shop which was all sombre black marble".

● An English music publisher has given the Jerusalem piano duetists, Bracha Eden and Alexander Tamir, the rights to the world premiere of a newly discovered piano duet by Mozart. The work will receive its first performance in Jerusalem at the end of December, before the two leave for a European tour.

Miss Eden says that it is "typical Mozart, containing both gay and somber sections". It was found three monthes ago in a castle in Germany. It has no Kochel number.

One section, Miss Eden said, was not completed in the bass and had to be filled in from Mozart's general design. The work takes a little more than ten minutes.

● A special committee has been formed in Warsaw to collect and publish the works of Abraham Morawski, the veteran Yiddish actor who died in Warsaw last year.

Ida Kaminska, director of the Yiddish State Theater, is a member of the committee. Abraham Morawski was famous for his interpretation of the role of the rabbi in The Dybbuk.

● In Israel, Danny Kaye promised to do a program when educational television will be available. He quipped, "I could do five Arabic songs", when he learned that Israelis now own TV sets to watch neighboring Arab stations. Kaye finds TV "more immediate, more productive, more creative" than motion pictures.

Describing his trip to Russia two years ago, he said he was not known there at all. "I was able to walk in the department stores and streets and nobody recognized me. It was a strange feeling and I'm not sure I liked it."

SERMON FOR THE WEEK

BRIDGING THE GAP

And it came to pass after Abraham died . . .
(Genesis 25, 11.)

After a rich and full life, Abraham, the spiritual giant of his day, had died. The man called by his contemporaries the prince of God; the man who could intercede even for the wicked people of Sodom; who was prepared to sacrifice his only son at the command of God, was now no more. What was to happen now?

True, Isaac was a living saint; goodness personified. But he was not an Abraham; not an original, creative spirit. He was the faithful conserver of a great father's tradition. But was that enough?

The same question assails us when we reflect on the great figures that illumined world history in the past; the giants of genius or near-genius who bestrode the world of their day. How small and ineffectual, in comparison, seem the men who grapple with the burning issues of our time.

The control of nuclear weapons, the stepping up of racial conflicts, the threatening population explosion and the fear of world famine a few decades hence — where are the statesmen, the men of genius, to tackle these problems before catastrophe strikes? Our gencration does not seem to be producing such types. Were they killed in the great World Wars? Did they perish in the flames of the crematoria? Or are we too close to events to recognise who are our great men?

The question is an important one, and the answer seems to be indicated in the selfsame verse. "And it came to pass after Abraham died, that God blessed Isaac his son.' Isaac was not an Abraham; he could not climb the spiritual heights reached by his great father, yet he too, in his own individual fashion, achieved the blessing of God.

We are not all cast in the same mould. Some are born to create; to think great, original thoughts; to invent and to innovate. The function of others is to conserve and preserve; to provide the soil in which the seed can germinate, till a new age of giants emerges from the womb of time. There is hope and blessing even for those who are not giants, but who are willing to remain "sons of Abraham."

When the great men are with us we shift the burden on their shoulders. But when they pass on, the Isaacs must rise to the challenge in their own characteristic fashion. For if we are not giants, then we are the descendants of giants, so long as we preserve the cherished traditions handed down to us.

In spite of our shortcomings, we must bridge the gap, and create for our children the atmosphere, the environment, spiritual, cultural and educational, out of which they may find the soil for wholesome, Jewish growth.

ISRAEL BOND SPONSOR WOMEN HEAR ZVI KOLITZ

One of the most impressive events of the Sponsor Committee of State of Israel Bonds took place at the home of Mrs. Arthur Minden on October 22nd, when Mr. Zvi Kolitz, distinguished Israeli film-maker and Co-Producer of "The Deputy" on Broadway, delivered a most impressive and thought-provoking address on this controversial play before a capacity audience of Sponsor women. In his address, Mr. Kolitz contrasted "the sin of silence" in the tragic events of the Nazi holocaust, with the constructive silence of Israel in the tremendous achievement of the life-giving Jordan Water Scheme which is now opening the entire Negev to cultivation and population. Construction of the pipeline was made possible by State of Israel Bond funds, enabling Israel to take a giant step forward in the vital race against time — to build, to develop, to industrialize to provide electricity, housing, and explore the mineral potential of the desert.

A highlight of the afternoon was the presentation of the beautiful 1964 "Sponsor Pins" to ladies who qualified for membership in this honour group through their purchase of $1,000 State of Israel Bonds.

Israeli Judge

PROSTITUTION NOT OFFENSE

TEL AVIV, (JCNS) A 20-year-old woman was acquitted last week of soliciting for immoral purposes and of committing an indecent act in public, by Judge Y. Irtoni who declared that prostitution was not an offence in Israel.

Mr. Irtoni found that the woman had merely uttered the words "Ten pounds" to a passing youth, that he had understood her and followed her to a nearby garage—"an obscure structure in an isolated area"—and they had sexual relations. This, he said, was not soliciting, which he interpreted as "to plead stubbornly", nor was the act complained of performed in public.

Magistrate Irtoni, criticising the police for bringing the charge said it was not their duty to attempt to wipe out prostitution "which no civilised country had succeeded in doing." He quoted the examples of Tamar and Jephtha to show that the Bible did not condem prostitutes, prostitution an honourable profession, but that only the daughters of priests were actually punished for it.

The police have announced their intention of appealing against the acquittal.

Jew In Danish Cabinet

COPENHAGEN (JCNS) — Mr. Henry Grunbaum is the first Jew to become a member of a Danish Government since the First World War. He has just been appointed Minister for Economic Affairs and Relations with Norway, Sweden and Finland in Mr. Jens Otto Krag's new Social Democratic Government.

The son of a shoemaker, Mr. Grunbaum, who is 53, began his working life as an engraver, but after further education became a journalist, working for the Danish paper, "Social-Demokraten".

Later, he became head of the economic department of the Danish Workers' and Specialist Workers' Union. During the German war-time occupation of Denmark, Mr. Grunbaum became a member of the special branch of the Danish Liberty movement in Stockholm, Sweden.

The last Jew to be a Danish Minister was Mr. Edward Brandes, who was Minister of Finance during the First World War. He was a brother of the philosopher, Professor Georg Brandes.

How Much Are Surveys Worth?

Martin L. Gross's "The Brain Watchers", a hard-hitting critique of the psychological testers and surveyors of personality traits and attitudes, is a best-selling paperback, after being acclaimed by such reputable journals as the "Saturday Review" and the "New York Times" as an exposure of the "racket" of personality testing.

The book's thesis, approved by many leading psychologists, that 'brain watching" is particularly inconclusive and even misleading when applied to teenagers and young adults around twenty, has many implications for the testing addiction of American Jewish organisations. Hardly a week passes without a new survey being launched or a report on a completed survey being published.

College students are the favourite subjects of "brain watchers" and there are also many completed surveys and surveys in progress on the attitudes of Jewish college students, who now represent 80 percent of their age group in the American-Jewish community, to Jewish identification, the synagogue, prayer, intermarriage, and so on. The results of such surveys hold out little hope for a higher quality of, Jewishness in present Jewish college students.

By and large, the surveys confirm what B'nai B'rith Hillel directors have long known, that the students reflect the attitudes of their homes by identifying Jewishly in social groups, while being indifferent to participation in religious worship and Jewish studies.

In several Hillel Foundations, however, this pattern has been broken in the last few years. The change towards the strongest possible religious and study identification on these campuses has been brought about by the Lubavitcher Chasidim, a group no observer of the American scene would have thought capable of getting a hearing from typical college students.

About two weeks ago when I lectured at the Hillel Foundation of Maryland University (which has 1,900 Jewish students out of a total student body of 20,000), I was amazed to see that the four students who greeted me at the airport and drove me to the campus were wearing yarmulkas. During the 45-minute drive, I was told that their lives, and those of a hundred or more of their fellow students, had been decisively changed, about two years earlier, when a handful of Lubavitcher Chasidim, American-born and in their early twenties, invited themselves, to the Hillel Foundation for a "Shabbaton".

The Lubavitcher, who brought their own food and paid their own expenses, did not "demonstrate" a traditional Sabbath, one of the students, a post-graduate fellow in physics with a very high scholastic record, told me. "They 'lived' the Sabbath from Friday evening until Havdalah and Shalosh Se'udot, and we lived and experienced the Sabbath with them."

Rabbi Meyer Greenberg, a Conservative rabbi who is the director of the foundation and the organiser of its eminently successful kosher dining club, which provides three meals a day for about 150 students, pointed out that, while the foundation was far from being a Lubavitcher shtibl the impact of the Lubavitcher "Shabbaton" and of the Sabbaths spent by students as guests of Lubavitcher families in Crown Heights, Brooklyn, was "amazing".

He pointed to a long-bearded youth of about 20, with side-curls, explaining that, until the Lubavitcher came to the campus he was not even seen once at services. Another teenager, whom I observed reciting grace after meals with the fervour and abandon of the idealised Chasid of Buber's tales, used to be a militant opponent of Jewish observance, according to Rabbi Greenberg.

The change in the attitudes of Jewish students at Maryland University is not exceptional. In all Hillel Foundations where the Lubavitcher Service to College Students has been permitted to conduct a "Shabbaton", the response has been as enthusiastic as at Maryland University.

According to Rabbi Greenberg, Jewish students are searching for a warm and satisfying Jewish life. Like all young people, he said, they need substantial food for the mind and for the emotions. Chabad Chasidim seems to be able to satisfy these cravings.

There was agreement among the students I questioned that what 'converted" them to Lubavitch was the sincerity of the Rebbe's emissaries. "You adults," one second-term student said, 'don't realise that kids — even tiny tots — can sense whether a teacher or a preacher is really sincere. I became a Lubavitcher Chasid of a sort because those Lubavitcher kids from Brooklyn were really sincere. They meant it."

Rabbi Greenberg and other Hillel directors who have played host to Lubavitcher "Shabbatons" are far from being Chasidim themselves. They agree, however, that the Lubavitcher "Shabbatons" are the best thing that has happened in their Hillel Foundations. It goes to prove, they say, that even the students most indifferent to Judaism will change, and that the forecasts of those who "watch brains" by means of surveys are little more than pessimistic conjectures.

JEWISH NOBEL PRIZE WINNER

NEW YORK (JCNS) — Professor Konrad E. Bloch, of Harvard Uiversity, who shared this year's Nobel Prize for medicine with a German colleague, is a refugee from Germany, "forced to flee like so many other Jews", he told the JCNS correspondent here in a telephone conversation from his home in Lexington, mass.

He was born in Niesse, in Silesia, fifty-two years ago. On leaving Germany in 1934, he went first to Switzerland where he spent two years, then to America where he did his graduate work at Columbia University, where he gained a doctorate in biochemistry in 1938. In Germany he had studied chemical engineering at the Technical High School in Munich.

The JCNS correspondent asked Dr. Bloch, who was reluctant to talk of himself, of his youth and Jewish education. "Let us just say that I was brought up in the Jewish faith and have retained it," he replied. "I am not actively religious. But I give to Jewish organizations and causes."

He has visited Israel and lectured at the Weizmann Institute, the Hebrew University and the Technion.

Dr. Bloch is an editor of the "Journal of Biological Chemistry", a member of the National Academy of Science, the Harvey Society, the American Chemical Society and the American Society of Biological Chemists, and a fellow of the American Academy of Science. He has been chairman of the section on metabolism and research of the National Research Council's Committee on Growth, and is a member of the biochemistry study section of the U.S. Public Health Service.

He is married to the former Miss Lore Teuscah whom he met in Germany, and they have two children, Peter, 20, a student at Harvard, and Susan, 16, a student atConcord Academy.

MAX MAYZEL CITED FOR OUTSTANDING ISRAEL BOND EFFORTS

Max Mayzel, whose efforts on behalf of the B'nai B'rith State of Israel Bond Campaign in Leonard Mayzel-Ontario Lodge have brought outstanding renown and recognition to this group within B'nai B'rith and the community, was the recipient of a handsome scroll at the Open Meeting of the Lodge on October 21st, in recognition of his dedicated leadership. In making the presentation, Harry J. Pachter, Israel Commissioner for District No. 22, cited Max Mayzel's tireless efforts to enroll new participants in the Israel Bond program as partners in this historic enterprise of building and development. "He appreciates most fully what might have happened to the more than two-and-a-half million Jews now living in Israel — if there had not been an "Israel." And he appreciates also, the tremendous impact of Israel's continued existence, not merely upon the Jews who inhabit Israel, but upon every Jew outside Israel, who has inevitably been affected by its development, stated Mr Pachter. Shown here are left to right: Harry J. Pachter, Mike Mayer, President, Leonard Mayzel Ontario Lodge; and Max Mayzel.

TORONTO THEATRE HI-LIGHTS

Hilarious Comedy At Royal Alex

Barefoot in the Park, Broadway's smash comedy hit of the season, is convulsing audiences at the Royal Alexandra Theater, where it is doing a month's stint. The distinguished cast is headed by famous screen star Myrna Loy, Richard Benjamin, Joan Van Ark and Sandor Szabo.

Directed by Mike Nichols, it tells the story of a young married couple's frenzied endeavors to set up housekeeping in an unfurnished walk-up apartment after a six-day honeymoon. Visits from family and friends, tradesmen and such, are followed by wild hilarity.

Merry Widow Very Merry

After a week of darkness, the O'Keefe Center brings for three weeks, starting Tuesday, November 10th, Franz Lehar's immortal, The Merry Widow, with opera star Patrice Munsel and Bob Wright in the leading roles.

First produced in New York in 1907, The Merry Widow is famed for its songs, Merry Widow Waltz and Vilia; also for the can-can which is popularized.

Shades Of Kurt Weill

The World of Kurt Weill, in song, arrives at Eaton Auditorium December 1st, 2nd and 3rd, at 9:00 p.m., starring Martha Schlamme and Will Holt. Presented by Vera Norman, the repertoire will include such immortal melodies as Mack the Knife, Poor Jenny and September Song.

LOVE THAT BORGE

by BARBARA I. PEARL

After several seasons, Victor Borge, that great, big, lovable Dane — you know, the one who cracks jokes and manages to sneak a few chords in edgewise on the keyboard — is back in Toronto this week. He is performing at the O'Keefe Center, along with his one man — excuse me, two men — show.

Yes, Victor Borge and his piano, aided and abetted by Philharmonic Symphony maestro, Leonid Hambro, kept a capacity audience last night delightfully occupied.

Although his musical renditions were far and few between his quips, once Borge performed he was forgiven his slightly dragging pace.

Though his brand of jokes wouldn't be classified as such, nevertheless his easy, intimate style made up for any lack of originality.

It took a good deal of time for Borge to discuss Toronto, his favorite 336th city, how beautiful the O'Keefe is, how small his room at the Royal York — if you put a key in the door, the window breaks —, does one have access to the theater by beer caps, and other such ridiculous ramblings. One just can't help loving the man.

While he paced back and forth, towards the piano and away again, making one wish he'd play already, he mused about the Chinese: he can't make up his mind whether they are yellow or Red.

Sounds silly, doesn't it? But then, the audience was in a silly, receptive mood and one chuckled at the drop of a quip.

In fact, one member of the audience was a little too exuberant, whereas the inimitable entertainer expressed his appreciation by ad libbing, "Bless your heart — and your other vital organs".

He did discuss music when he got around to it. For instance, Aaron Copeland wrote a sonata with four flats — he moved three times.

Finally during a rendition of the romantic, Because, one of his first selections, he lost his way (deliberately, of course) modulating the first half of the theme in every key along the piano, finishing wth a flourish.

But it was during the second half of the program that Mr. Borge's imagination ran riot in duets with Leonid Hambro, a decided virtuoso of no mean caliber. And how they butchered the Blue Danube Waltz, ending with dissonances, shouldn't be done by any student! But again, everybody loved it.

During a duet of Tchaikowsky's Piano Concerto, Borge improvised and one rocognized Because, Jolly Good Fellow, Happy Birthday, Donkey Serenade — it was a hodge-podge of sheer genius, arranging the timing so that both artists ended on the same note at the same time.

A joy to hear was Mendelssohn's A Midsummer's Night Dream and Liszt's Campanella, played straight.

Thus, all too soon a delightful evening came to an end upon the waves of the Second Hungarian Rhapsody, played in duet on one piano where both musicians — or, this time comedians — became twisted like a pretzel.

THE HOMEY TYPE — Screen star Myrna Loy and Sandor Szabo in a scene from the smash comedy hit, Barefoot In The Park, now being seen at Toronto's Royal Alexandra Theater for two week more.

Celebrated Youth Orchestra

The 85-piece Israel National Youth Symphony, GADNA, which the Canada Israel Cultural Foundation is bringing to Massey Hall on Sunday, November 15th, at 8:30 p.m., probably is the most celebrated youth orchestra in the world.

Made up entirely of teenagers, GADNA was created 10 years ago to give the young people of Israel a means of self-expression and common creation and to bring good music to every corner of the new nation. The original personnel of the orchestra was drawn from members of the Youth Battalions of the Israeli defense army called, Gadna. Each year the older members of the orchestra are replaced by younger players. The name, Gadna, is retained as a symbol of the origins and spirit of this ensemble.

GAY NONETHELESS — Patrice Munsel, who acts the gay widow in Franz Lehar's The Merry Widow, which comes to Toronto's O'Keefe Center for three weeks beginning Tuesday, November 10th.

ISRAELI PRESIDENT GREETS TORONTO RABBI — Rabbi W. Gunther Plaut, spiritual leader of Toronto's Holy Blossom Temple, greeting President Zalman Shazar of Israel, at which time the Rabbi presented him with the first copy of his book, Judaism and the Scientific Spirit. The book, published in Hebrew in Tel Aviv under the title, Ha-Yahadut v' Ha-mada, deals with the influence of science, its findings and its theories upon the mind of modern man and speaks of the possibility of maintaining a religious faith in our time.
Rabbi Plaut also presented President Shazar with a gift from Mayor Philip Givens on behalf of the City of Toronto.

BY RUTHIE

I don't know if it made a dent among readers but, in Time Magazine (October 16th, 1964), in the section, Medicine, under gynecology, there is a brash statement by a Dr. Kistner. The physician is a gynecologist, and he blurted the following during a program of the American College of Surgeons:

"We are keeping women around too long — they should all be dead soon after age 45."

Dr. Know-It-All explained:

"Women are the only mammalian females to live beyond their reproductive usefulness. So it is by that evolutionary standard that they live too long. But since we do keep them around," get that, he's doing us a favor, "we should recognize that during the menopause they are living in a state of hormonal imbalance, and we should treat it. . ."

How nice! Since we refuse to be exterminated, the poor man suggests the world learn to live with the woman who, in his opinion, is just so much baggage after forty — it's the lesser of two evils.

Now, I wonder, what in the world did his poor mother do to deserve him?

If he's an old man, I forgive him because he may be oiverbuttal (mixed up; in second childhood).

And if he's not so old, then I recommend a strait jacket.

I wonder if he obtained his medical degree the hard way. Did his parents have to sacrifice a lot for him to go to med school? Did his mother, maybe, have to go out and work — and at menial tasks too — to meet her son's expenses?

Can you imagine, working till age 45 and then interrupting a boy's education by conveniently dropping dead!

I had one time one of the nicest cleaning women. Her husband made a living. But her earnings were used to send her son through college. And she had to work long past the age of 45. Would the good doctor say she had outlived her usefulness?

And dofka (as a matter of fact), why pick on 45? Why not 42, or 48?

So far as personal habits are concerned, Ned is the one who like to fall asleep in front of the TV every night. I could still manage to get a wolf whistle, so there.

This doctor must be a terribly frustrated person if he considers usefulness only in terms of reproduction. The colossal audacity of the man — to compare us with animals!

Sure, a cat always can have kittens. But comes a time when the little kittens become full-grown cats and are tossed out on their own.

Maybe his mother should have done the same.

If he's married and his wife left him — serves him right, with a mind like that. I'd be afraid to live with such a man for fear his idea one day might become an obsession.

I also wonder what sort of religious training Dr. Know-It-All didn't have, to make such a crack.

If he only read the Bible, he'd question the authenticity of Darwin's theory — that we all evolve from monkeys.

Could be, he looks like one.

Mama would have found an aytza (solution). She'd have said:

"Ministahm (probably) he has nothing to do, so he finds something from the heller hoit (bare skin). And if he can't find something to do, zull er kloppen kupp in der vahnt (let him knock his head in the wall)."

Anyway, for even suggesting a thing like that, he should hang by his tongue.
